

Support GISCorps

The primary mission of GISCorps is to provide short-term GIS expertise to less developed countries and communities around the world. In addition to emergency response missions (the Indonesian Tsunami, Hurricane Katrina, Haiti Earthquake, Japan Earthquake and Tsunami), GISCorps volunteers seek to enhance the well-being of less developed communities by providing GIS expertise in areas such as humanitarian relief, environmental analysis, economic development, community planning, aboriginal issues, and health and education related applications.

The activities of GISCorps are possible thanks to volunteer work, in-kind services, grants, donations and contributions (excluding software and hardware) as defined by our Strategic Plan.

The GISCorps Fund was established to provide support for GISCorps projects.
